DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 39 and 40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The phrase "at the same selected operating point" is considered to be new matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 39-41, 45-47 and 51-52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Koike et al (US 3,971,963).

Koike et al. disclose a method of making a magnet assembly comprising: providing a plurality of segments (e.g. 62, 62', 66, 66') of permanent magnet material configured, or when, to be arranged in parallel manner to form a magnet assembly; forming a radius of curvature on a top face (outer diameter surface of each of segments 62, 62', 66, 66') of each of the segments, such that the segments when assembled form a generally curved top surface having a radius of curvature that corresponds to a distance between the top face and an intended pivot axis (centerline of assembly in Fig. 4) of the assembled magnet; forming a curved back face (inner diameter surface of each of segments 62, 62', 66, 66') of each of the segments, such that the segments when assembled form a shape in accordance with at least one selected surface of constant contribution to the predetermined operating point, such that the segments of permanent magnet material will each contribute to the magnetic field generated at the predetermined operating point spaced from the center of the assembled magnet (col. 2, lines 39-55); and assembling the segments to form the magnet assembly (see Fig. 3).

Koike et al. disclose and illustrate in Figures 3 and 4 that the magnet comprises a front face generally facing the operating point, and an at least approximately curved back face facing away from the operating point, the back face generally conforming to a constant contribution surface of the magnetic field in the selected direction (col. 2, lines 39-55; col. 5, lines 28-63).
